TEN to Reflect

Example: I must practice acceptance because it is my starting point to get 'real' about challenges I face.

Provided here is a space (and time) to reflect; to reflect upon the WHY of leadership. Here, I suggest that you note the real relevance of each of these virtues to you, in your life, as a leader. This is not about what others think... it is WHY you must practice these virtues. Be real and be succinct. The clarity will pay dividends. This can become your statement of commitment to character leadership.

- - Barry Lewis Green

Acceptance

Beauty

Creativity

Detachment

Excellence

Faith

Generosity

Honor

Initiative

Joyfulness